Update

Below is the text of the proposed (and subsequently approved) Governance Policy of the then-CIS, as of April 15, 2015.

The content set out in this Governance Policy has now been captured in U SPORTS' numbered policies, including updated Terms of Reference and related content pertaining to the U SPORTS Board, MAC, Standing Committees, and Operating Committees. This Governance Policy will not be updated, now or moving forward, and instead only the numbered policies will be kept current.

This Governance Policy will continue to be posted online and accessible for review, because of its historical importance and the context it provides in relation to the organization's governance overhaul. However, it will no longer be an operative document.

As of August 15, 2017, in the event of any conflict between this Governance Policy and any of U SPORTS' numbered policies, the terms and conditions of the numbered policies shall prevail.

Canadian Interuniversity Sport GOVERNANCE POLICY

April 15, 2015

Preamble

This proposed policy has been prepared by the Governance Committee of the CIS and has been shared with Regional Associations and the Board of Directors. It is a proposed Governance Policy for the CIS moving forward from its successful transition under the Canada Not-for-profit Corporations Act. It is the culmination of many months of work by the Governance Committee, made up of Rob Johnson, Robert Hilson, Benoit Douloireux, Phil Currie, Pierre Lafontaine, and Tom Huisman, assisted by Rachel Corbett of the Sport Law & Strategy Group.

The Governance Committee began its work over 18 months ago. From the outset its approach was to guide the CIS to successful continuance under the new Canadian legislation while also recognizing that this journey represented a unique opportunity to review and reform other aspects of the governance processes of the CIS, in addition to those aspects necessary for compliance. In its May 2014 report to the CIS members, the Governance Committee wrote "... transition to the NFP Act provides an unparalleled opportunity to improve CIS governance in numerous ways. [We] believe that the Board of Directors of the CIS must focus on high level policy governance, allowing the CEO to manage operations within a strategic framework established by the Board".

The Committee acknowledges that this is a new way of doing business in the CIS. Previously, all committees reported directly to the Board of Directors (with the natural result that the Board became heavily involved in operational matters) and many policies of the CIS were approved by the members at their once-yearly meeting. This is an inefficient model of governance, is not consistent with the CIS strategic plan, and is not appropriate for a sport organization of the size and influence of the CIS.

The Governance Committee has been given the green light by both the CIS Board of Directors and the CIS Presidents Advisory Board to move forward with comprehensive governance recommendations. This document sets out roles, responsibilities and expectations of all the "moving parts" of the proposed CIS governance structure: Board, Officers, the CEO and staff, the Management Advisory Council, Standing Committees, Operating Committees, and Championship Event Committees. It includes a proposed organizational chart as well as decision-making matrix illustrating who has authority to propose, recommend and decide the many issues that the CIS contends with on a daily basis.

In this proposal, some elements of CIS governance have not changed: the members retain authority over Articles, Bylaws, admission of new member institutions. The proposal retains committees for Eligibility, AFAs and Equity. On the other hand, many elements have changed: the Board is vested with decision-making authority over several matters that previously were decided by members, the CEO is vested with greater authority over operational matters, and separate committees are proposed for overseeing and delivering different championships, events and sports.

Following consultation with Regional Associations in January and February 2015, four items in this document remained contentious and were recently reviewed by the Board of Directors, the PAB and newly created Transition Committee These items were the following:

1. Should the Board or the Members determine Member dues? (Note in this document, it is recommended that the Board has the authority to determine budgets, including dues, based upon recommendations of the Finance Committee)

2. Should the Board or the Members determine policy governing AFAs? (Note in this document it is recommended that the Members retain authority over AFA policies)

3. Should a Management Council (composed of Directors) work with the CEO on coordinating operational matters? (Note that there is no such oversight council in this document, although it is acknowledged by the Governance Committee that some form of Transition Committee is desirable to ensure a smooth transition to the new governance and operational structure)

4. Should the Management Advisory Council be composed of Chairs of CIS committees or of the EDs/CEOs of the Regional Associations? (Note in this document it is recommended that the Management Advisory Council is composed of the EDs/CEOs of the Regional Associations).

Note: Where the above items appear in the text of this document, they are bracketed by double asterisks ( text ). Items 1 and 2 are also reflected in Section 10, Decision-Making Matrix.

Following that review, the Board has determined that Items 1 & 2 above will be the responsibility of the new Board and Items 3 and 4 have been referred to the Transition Committee for follow-up. As a result, changes to the February 20 version of this document have been completed to reflect the Board's responsibility for Items 1 & 2.

Please note that this preamble, and all remaining text in the document that is in italics, are for explanatory purposes only and would form part of the official policy, once adopted.

OVERVIEW

This document sets forth how Canadian Interuniversity Sport (CIS) governs. More particularly, this Policy defines the role that the Board of Directors, Board Committees, Operating Committees, the Management Advisory Council and the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) will fill in governing and directing the affairs of CIS.

The Board of Directors of the CIS is elected by the Members. Members are organized into four classes (corresponding to the four Regional Associations) and each class elects an Athletic Director and a University President, thus creating a Board of eight Directors. These elected Directors have the discretion (under the new legislation) to appoint a ninth Director if they wish. Consistent with corporate law, a Director unable to attend a Board meeting is deemed absent from the meeting, and may not send an alternate Director in his/her place. The same principle will apply to members of all CIS committees.

The Board of Directors' primary role is to govern by providing leadership and direction for CIS in pursuit of its vision and mission. The Board is elected by the membership of CIS and is ultimately accountable to the membership for competent stewardship to ensure the long-term viability of CIS. As stated in the Bylaws, the Board of Directors has the power to establish Standing Committees (beyond those identified in this Policy), ad-hoc committees, task forces and work groups to assist the Board in carrying out its duties.

The CIS Board of Directors believes that good corporate governance is vital to the effective and efficient operation of CIS. CIS employs a model of governance that separates governance and management functions. The Board, which focuses on governance, delegates to the CEO the responsibility to manage the day-to-day operations of CIS in accordance with Board direction and policies, the strategic plan, and subject to any limits that may be established by the Board.

Good governance requires maintaining a very clear and disciplined distinction between the functions of the Board and the functions of management. It also requires that the Board follow the principles of sound governance endorsed by Sport Canada, one of CIS's significant funders, namely:

- Recognizing high standards of ethical behaviour as a core principle in all governance activities;
- Demonstrating commitment to CIS's vision, mission, values and strategic plan;
- Promoting clarity of roles and responsibilities within CIS's governance structure;
- Providing continuity for CIS by ensuring financial health and appropriate human resources; and
- Being transparent and accountable to Members and others, for outcomes and results.

This Policy establishes roles and responsibilities for the Board as a whole, as well as for Officers and Directors in their individual capacities. This Policy also sets out the Terms of Reference for Standing Committees, which are established to assist the Board of Directors in carrying out its governance role, as well as Operating Committees and the Management Advisory Council (which are established to assist the CEO in carrying out his/her management role). While reporting relationships within the governance structure have changed, there will continue to be a high degree of consultation among and between management, committees, Members and the Board of Directors.

5. MANAGEMENT ADVISORY COUNCIL – TERMS OF REFERENCE

Preamble

Consistent with a governance board, the CEO is given authority to manage operations within the parameters of Board- and Member-approved policies and the strategic plan. In exercising his/her executive authority, the CEO is informed and assisted by CIS staff (who work closely with all operating and sport committees) as well as by a management group composed of representatives from the Regional Associations. It is proposed that this group be made up of the Executive Directors (or in the case of Ontario University Athletics, the CEO) of the four Regional Associations along with the CEO of the CIS. These individuals will have the best overall grasp of operational matters within the Regional Associations and will be able to judge and communicate the impact of CIS decisions and policies on Regional Associations.

To a certain degree this management group already exists informally, as the Executive Directors of Regional Associations have a working relationship with the CEO and meet regularly. The purpose of the terms of reference set out here is to clarify how the group can be a mechanism to communicate, exchange information, advise and coordinate operational activities throughout the CIS and Regional Associations.

Mandate

 The Management Advisory Council (MAC) is an advisory committee composed of executive staff of the CIS and its Regional Associations.  The primary role of the MAC is to support effective decision-making by the CEO through ensuring effective and ongoing communication between and among the CIS and its Regional Associations.

Key Duties

- Maintain ongoing communication on operational matters affecting CIS Members, Regional Associations and the CIS office
- Review recommendations from CIS operational committees prior to these recommendations moving forward for decision at the membership, Board, or CEO level
- Provide advice to the CEO on matters that are within his/her jurisdiction to decide and which may potentially impact Members and Regional Associations
- Provide advice to the CEO on suitable candidates to be appointed to committees
- Represent the views of the Members and Regional Associations to the CEO on operational matters having impact throughout the CIS
- Exchange information on any emerging issues that require communication or collaboration among Regional Associations
- Collaborate with the CEO on alignment and implementation of the CIS strategic plan
- Participate with the CEO in the ongoing scanning of the environment for risks
- Exchange information on any emerging issues that should be brought to the attention of the membership, Regional Associations, standing committees or the Board
